Akron Public Schools is providing an end-of-semester Intersession Real Time Intervention to all 6th-12th grade students to enrich learning opportunities. Intersession is an academic window of time between semesters in which students engage in either a self-directed (asynchronous) project or a teacher-directed (synchronous) lesson and assessment. Either Intersession assignment is customized to deepen and extend student learning opportunities.

An Intersession ensures students stay on track toward grade level advancement, earn semester credit, and enhance the 3 Es: Employment, Enlistment, or Enrollment studies. Additionally, it is important to ensure preparedness for the Ohio State Tests (OSTs).

Types of Intersession Real Time Interventions:

Asynchronous: Students will be assigned an independent self-directed project of study. Students qualify by having projected grades of A, B or C in each of their Semester One courses. These students will not report to regularly scheduled classes where they have a projected grade of A, B or C during the Intersession window. North has designed and will assign the self-directed project to be completed during Intersession. Students who successfully complete the asynchronous project during Intersession will qualify for two days of early release right before spring break.

Synchronous: Students will continue in their regularly scheduled courses in which they have projected grades of D or F. The teachers will assign lessons and assessments to take place during Intersession to ensure content attainment. All work will be evaluated with the goal of improving the semester grade and/or earning credit. Teachers will be discussing specific details regarding their class this week and attendance is mandatory during the week of Jan. 19th. Note: If a student's grade improves before the Intersession window begins, the teacher will notify the student of their release from any synchronous work and the student may be reassigned to an asynchronous independent project if he or she qualifies.

Intersession window of dates is January 19-22. All students will resume normal schedules January 25. Students will receive individual communication this week regarding their status. They should look for it in their school emails.
